EDITORIAL

"Where is it?"

"Hasn't that report been done yet?"

"Do you really think he means this?"

Papers shuffle from hand to hand, typewriters plink their painful two-fingered way through sheaves of manuscript, and harassed committeemen invent rhyming couplets to complete poetic masterpieces, drink copious cups of tea and make incredibly ghastly puns.

The scene: The Towers' Editorial office.

Location: The Ladies' Staffroom table.

Atmosphere: Somewhat less than soberly intellectual.

This year has been one of the most enjoyable years we have experienced as Editors of the School Magazine. Not only have the student staff been the most pleasant and hard working of any group we have worked with, but so many other people have contributed in so many ways towards the production of the 1972 Magazine.

We would especially like to record our appreciation of the generous financial assistance given by the businessmen and private citizens of Penrith, without which we could not afford to produce The Towers.

Mr. M. Chambers, of our own Penrith High School staff has spent many hours working on photography. Mr. H. Earp has not only lent us his typewriter but has been unstinting in encouragement and help. Miss Startin has been entirely responsible for the art work and the layout of the art section. Phillip Mieluk came to our assistance with the loan of his own typewriter. Mr. Kohler, of Parramatta, once again has produced the fine traditional school photographs we have come to expect from him. We extend the thanks of the Committee to these people and to all who have contributed in any way to the effort of publication, and hope that The Towers, 1972, is worthy of their interest.
